The Lesson of Nancy Hanks.

Here is a grand little woman of horsedom, named after the very good woman who was Abraham Lincoln's mother. She is Nancy Hanks, the six-year-old queen of the trotting turf, who has never lost a race and who last August, at Independence, Is., took the wind jestic Margaret S., beating them in three NANCT HANKS. Nancy hasn't the gift of gab like girls of he human race. She doesn't even converse in the hippic language of Dean Swift's houhnhayms. Her performances do all the talking that is necessary. She saves her "grinders" by fooling with a Bostonese vo-cabulary like some females do who think big words make them appear smart in other people's cars.

No, Nancy is a modest, unassuming equine woman, fifteen hauds high and of a dark bay complexion. She holds the five-year-old mile record, 2.09, which she made last September at Richmond, Ind., and only last Thursday, just by way of easing up her joints and "keeping her hoof in." if I may be permitted to adapt a common phrase, she went a mile in 2.11% over the course of the Belmont Driving

Mrs. H. M. Stanley in Politics.

English politics are different from ours. The women take an interest in their husband's affairs on the other side when the husbands are candidates. They not only interes bemselves, but they are active during the canvass, beard the voters in their lairs, make speeches to them, and, on occasions, around exchanging kisses for ballots.

MR. AND MRS. STANLEY CAMPAIGNING. The wives of candidates in this country att quietly at home and say and do nothing. Where is the American woman who would go through what Mrs. Henry M. Stanley wen through during the campaign in North Lam-beth, where the African explorer was defeated for Parliament? She made almost as many speeches as Stanley himself did, and would not be howled down by the mobs and shared with him an attack which eadangered both their lives.

Don't Let Him Bag His Trousers. A lover should never go down on his knee to propose to his sweetheart, for if she should happen to accept and he should marry her she will remind him of it fifty times a week. Whenever there is the slightest difference or when he gives her the least cross word she fires up in an instant and tells him: " You didn't talk that way when you went lown on your knees and begged me, with tears in your eyes, to marry you." A man naturally gets tired of being reminded of his folly, but a woman never gets tired of reminding him, and that is what
